

Accelerated Management Team Development Through Coaching

We are currently seeing a rapid change in the global business community. Whole industries are undergoing a process of restructuring and increasing competition, forcing companies and organisations to deliver better results, with fewer resources. This, of course, puts a great strain on the leadership at all levels and new management teams are frequently formed as a result of reorganisation and restructuring.

Experience shows that team-building activities and a focus on group processes and dynamics greatly helps the management team to develop and makes them more efficient in their work. However, many management teams still never reach their true potential and, worse, some actually underperform.

In response to this, MDP has developed a new process, taking team development one step further.

By combining the strength of team development through improved processes and dynamics, with individual development through personal coaching, the team can truly aspire to reach its full potential and thereby also reach new levels of efficiency and effectiveness.

Developing the Management Team in two steps

The process builds on MDP's unique concept of "Development through Dialogue"©, and supports the team leader in developing his or her team while simultaneously developing the skills of the individual team members. The main advantage with MDP's model is that this process ensures an accelerated and sustainable team development which has a great impact on both top- and bottom line results.
